DIEHARD JAPS
STAMPED OUT
ON IWO JIMAAMERICANS CONTROL
MINDANAO COAST
FOR 28 MILES

BY CLYDE BARTEL

Associated Press War Editor

United States 41st Division troops pushing the increasingly resisting Japanese into the hills of Zamboanga peninsula on Mindanao island, Philippines, have seized control of 28 miles of the peninsula seacoast and captured 15 more villages.

Marines continued to mop up Japanese diehard remnants still clinging to the sandstone northern fringe of Iwo Jima, where the American flag has been officially raised, signifying possession of the island.

The conquest of Iwo Jima for an advanced air base only 750 miles from Tokyo cost the lives of around 4,000 marines, Vice Adm. Richmond K. Turner indicated by his estimate that the Leatherneck dead was less than one-fifth that of the enemy.

Tokyo In Panic

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's communique today (Friday) announcing the Mindanao successes also said the Sixth and 43rd Divisions made further advances against the Japanese Shimbu line in the hills east of Manila on Luzon island.

The death of Maj. Gen. Edwin J. Patrick, commanding general of the Sixth Division, from wounds received in action was reported to his widow in El Paso, Tex., in a war department notification.

American planes flying the South China sea blockade airbases sank a Japanese destroyer, a tanker and four freighters, MacArthur said, while bombers hit enemy installations on Formosa with 174 tons of explosives and blasted Mindanao with 200 tons. Japanese radio broadcasts admitted for the first time that American Superfortresses mass attacks on Tokyo, Nagoya and Osaka within the week took a heavy toll of life and did "considerable" damage.

A Tass, Russian news agency, dispatched said the 2,300-ton incendiary bombing of Tokyo early last Saturday threw the population into a panic and even six days later thousands of refugees were trying to leave the city.

Trains Enter Manila

Ship and rail transportation serving Manila again. A train on the Manila-Lingayen line entered the city with MacArthur in the flag-bedecked locomotive cab, a few hours after a Navy LST completed the first sea contact by dropping its ramp on the harbor beach.

Secretary of War Stimson said in Washington Japanese dead counted by Americans in the campaign on Luzon and Leyte, two of the 23 Philippine islands invaded by the Yanks so far, totaled 150,278, against total Yank casualties of 31,221 which included 6,899 dead, 23,978 wounded and 354 missing.

British empire troops battling inside Mandalay, in Burma, closed from the east and west against Japanese stubbornly defending Fort Dufferin.

Chinese troops were vigorously attacking Japanese positions southwest of Yushien in Hunan province, Interior South China, the Chinese high command said.

Chungking viewed the attack as presaging a counteroffensive against the east flank of the enemy's Canton-Hankow rail corridor.

Duke Of Windsor
Resigns Post As
Bahamas Governor

Nassau, Bahamas, March 15 (AP)—The Duke of Windsor pointed out tonight that he has served for nearly five years as governor of the Bahamas, and declared that the announcement of his resignation should occasion no surprise.

In a news conference at Nassau, the Duke declared that when he leaves office at the end of April, he will have served within three and one-half months of completing "the five year period of normal, maximum tenure of a colonial governorship."

Edward and his American born wife, for whose love he abdicated, have been hard at work—except during their occasional visits to the United States—ever since they landed at this outpost of empire.

The Duchess, as president of the Bahamas Red Cross, has been active in war and welfare projects. Her untiring efforts have won her the admiration of Bahamians, who were impressed by the fact that she did not leave the hard work to others.

Trained to rule a mighty empire, the Duke put all of his energies into the task of governing this tiny colony of some 70,000 inhabitants who live on the islands scattered off the southern coast of the United States.

He has worked and planned, particularly, in an effort to solve the islands' economic plight which resulted from the war-time cessation of tourist trade.

The Duke arranged for about 5,000 Bahamians to go to the United States to help relieve the shortage of farm labor. He took a lead in efforts to revive peasant industries.

PINCH IS FELT
BY LAWMAKERSBill Introduced To Give
Legislators $5 A Day
Expense Money

Lansing, March 15 (AP)—Rep. James B. Stanley, Kalamazoo Republican, introduced a bill in the House today which would grant legislators an expense allowance of $5 a day while actually in session here, retroactive to start of the 1945 session on Jan. 3.

Stanley defeated a proposed amendment to raise legislators' pay from $3 a day the House to $5.

Stanley has been a long-time advocate of higher pay for lawmakers, contending that it is impossible to live on the legislative wage in Lansing and that this presents a temptation to impecunious members to accept favors from lobbyists and others having special interests in the legislature.

The House, after long wrangling, failed to muster sufficient votes to dump back into committee a bill which would allow returning war veterans to purchase tax delinquent lands from the state for homestead purposes at a cost of 10 per cent of assessed valuation of the property.

Rep. Eugene C. Betz, Monroe Republican, suggested people are having a "period of hysterics" over doing favors for veterans, without considering whether the favors are real, and that he thought it was a bad bill.

Pomology Expert
New Horticulture
Head In Michigan

Lansing, March 15 (AP)—The state board of agriculture today appointed Dr. Harold B. Tukey, research professor of pomology at the New York Experiment Station, Geneva, N. Y., as professor and head of the Michigan State college department of horticulture.

The college said Dr. Tukey is nationally recognized for research in fruit tree rootstock and nursery propagation, culture of seed embryos in artificial media and use of hormones in weed control. He has been secretary of the American Society of Horticulture Science since 1927. He relieves V. R. Gardner, department head since 1922, who will continue as director of the M. S. C. Experiment Station.

The Diamond Match Co. said today the imminent ending of a winter which has disrupted rail shipments will free supplies stacked up at factories for a lack of cars.

Jury Convicts Senator
And Chiropractor For
Bribes In Legislature

BY ROBERTA APFLEGATE

Mason, Mich., March 15 (AP)—State Senator Carl F. Delano, Kalamazoo Republican, and Mihkel Sherman, Detroit chiropractor, were convicted by a circuit court jury today on charges of a 1939 legislative graft conspiracy.

The jury acquitted Martin W. Hildebrand, Battle Creek chiropractor and Ernest W. Alden, former Detroit chiropractor, after deliberating for more than 11 hours. It disagreed in the cases of the three other defendants, former Representatives Edward J. Walsh, Francis J. Nowak and William G. Buckley, Detroit Democrats.

Special Judge John Simpson of Jackson immediately sentenced Delano and Sherman to serve three to five years in prison, but they were released on $4,000 bond pending an appeal which they said they would file.

The defendants were tried on a warrant issued by Circuit Judge Leland W. Carr's one-man grand jury, charging they conspired to corrupt the 1939 legislature in a futile attempt to obtain adoption of a law regulating and legally recognizing the practice of the healing art of naturopathy. The bill was sponsored by the American Naturopathic Association of Michigan, of which Sherman was president in 1939.

Special Prosecutor Kim Sigler said he did not know whether there would be a retrial of the three former legislators on whom the jury failed to agree. Buckley and Nowak already are serving sentences of three to five years on a prior graft conspiracy conviction, and Walsh, also convicted and sentenced in that case, is free on bond.

Delano, influential Republican member of the senate, declined to comment on his conviction, other than that he would appeal his case. He said he had "given no thought" to whether he would resign his seat.

Sherman's only comment was "I am innocent."

At Lansing, it was uncertain whether Delano's seat would be declared vacant if he does not resign.

REICH CAPITAL
AREA BATTEREDStaff Headquarters Of German Army Is Blown To Bits

BY CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

London, Friday, March 16 (AP)—The German army's general staff headquarters near Berlin was smashed yesterday in one phase of a 2,100-plane American raid which was followed last night by the twenty-fourth consecutive RAF night bombing of the enemy capital. The attacks concluded one of the biggest and most successful days of the war for the Allied air force.

The American bombers sowed 3,500 tons of high explosives and incendiaries in the vicinity of Berlin, including the German army's nerve center at Zossen, 20 miles south, where some 650 especially-briefed bombardiers of the Eighth Air Force had little trouble picking out the target in clear weather.

The visual bombing of Zossen, where the highest ranking officers of the Wehrmacht were believed engrossed in attempting to run the war on both the eastern and western fronts, probably will rank among the best accomplished by the Eighth Air Force, its officers said. Returning crewmen were jubilant over the success of the mission.

Anti-aircraft fire, though heavy at other points near Berlin, was meager at Zossen. Sixteen bombers and three fighters were reported missing from the Eighth's operations yesterday.

Meanwhile, the RAF was hurling 11-ton "town-busters" at western Germany, and the British planes came back after dark for the Ruhr, and Misburg, three miles east of Hannover, where an oil refinery was hit.

COMMERCIALS CURBED

New York, March 15 (AP)—The National Broadcasting Company announced today that all middle commercial announcements would be eliminated from its news broadcasts, effective immediately.

President Niles Trammell said the policy is to apply to all news broadcasts originated by NBC and its owned and operated stations.

ENEMY FORCE
SLICED UP IN
EAST PRUSSIAKNOCKOUT ASSAULT
ON BERLIN MAY START SOON

BY ROMNEY WHEELER

London, March 15 (AP)—Russian shock troops sliced the German east Prussian pocket into two vulnerable segments today by smashing to the east of the Frisches Haff (lagoon) in a bitter mop-up prelude to the coming central offensive toward Berlin.

The Russians reached the coast of Hevde-Waldburg, and captured that village five miles southwest of Koenigsberg after it had changed hands repeatedly in the bitter fighting since late January when the Soviets first took it.

Six other localities were seized on a 27-mile front opposite Brandenburg, Heiligenbel, and Braunsberg, last big German strongholds besides Koenigsberg still in enemy hands.

Hevde-Waldburg is five miles northeast of Brandenburg. The Russians also captured Kobbelbude, five miles southeast of Brandenburg.

Prelude To D-Day

Threatening to divide the Nazi pocket yet again, the Russians also captured the four-way junction town of Bludau, six miles northeast of Heiligenbel and only about three miles from the coast, and at the lower end of the front took Eisenberg, six miles southeast of Heiligenbel, and Vogel-sang, four miles southeast of Braunsberg.

More than 1,000 Germans were captured, the bulletin said, in this fierce struggle east of the besieged Gdynia-Danzig pocket.

The Soviet clean-up of East Prussia and the combined smashes at the ports of Gdynia and Danzig to the west were regarded as the preludes to the coming great offensive toward Berlin and Dresden, Saxon capital, but the Germans and Russians alike reported savage fighting in Hungary and Slovakia and the Nazis told of fierce Russian assaults near Stettin, at the mouth of the Oder river, and at Kolberg, surrounding Baltic port in overrun Pomerania.

The Nazi garrison at Kolberg has rejected two Russian surrender demands, Berlin said.

The Russians were laying down a terrific barrage on German positions on the west bank of the Dnieper river near the Baltic, and the Germans said Red army shock troops were trying to cross to Wollin island, one of the stepping stones to the heavily fortified port of Swinemunde, 33 miles northwest of Stettin.

Convict At Jackson
Freed For Four-Day
Trip Without Guard

Lansing, March 15 (AP)—Garrett Heyns, state corrections director, said today an inquiry has substantiated reports that Warden Harry H. Jackson of the state prison of southern Michigan allowed a prisoner four days of liberty without a guard to make a trip.

Heyns said he has turned over to the corrections commission the sworn record of the testimony of the inmate, Kris Schumacher of Millington, in which Schumacher told the state parole board of his unescorted "furlough" from prison on which he made a trip to Detroit and paid an overnight visit to his home in Millington.

Heyns said the incident still is under investigation but that a preliminary check up of the facts has established the story "is definitely true."

The director said Warden Jackson first denied but later admitted he had given permission to Schumacher to go to Detroit without a guard escort to arrange for recording of a song written by inmates and employees of the prison. He said Schumacher made the trip alone by train, spent two days in Detroit, and then spent a day and night at home before returning to prison, where he was serving one to two years on a conviction of possessing slot machines.

Strike Stalemate
Ties Up Moviedom

Hollywood, March 15 (AP)—The film industry strike settled down to a stalemate today, with intervention by some government agency apparently the only solution.

Opposing union groups refused to budge an inch in their positions, and film producers repeated that they were hopelessly entangled in the middle.

Studios remained in operation, with one or more pictures in production in each plant, but work admittedly was carried on by skeleton crews.

Victory In Europe
Perhaps Near, Says
Winston Churchill

BY ALEX H. SINGLETON

London, March 15 (AP)—The war in Europe might well end "before summer ends or even sooner," Prime Minister Churchill told a conference of the Conservative party today.

"Victory lies before us—certain and perhaps near," he declared. In making his prediction on the defeat of Germany, Churchill pointed out that with "war conditions will no longer prevent, as they have hitherto prevented, the holding of a general election."

He said the Liberal and Labor parties had indicated that they would resume their liberty of action in that election and end the coalition government of which he is head.

Therefore, Churchill declared, the Conservative party must consider the issue of the election to come and he drew it clearly as a show-down fight between forces of the right and left.

The prime minister demanded a future of "free enterprise" for Britain and exhorted the Conservatives to stand firm against economic programs of nationalization "borrowed from foreign lands and alien minds" and against the ideas of the "stay-at-home, left-wing intelligentsia."

Saying "it is no cheap-lie utopia of airy phrases that lies before us," Churchill asserted the Conservative party would be better off going down to defeat telling the truth than joining "a span of shabbily bought office by easy and fickle froth and chatter."

In this fighting pep-talk to the party which he heads, Churchill dropped the impartiality of his role as a coalition premier and slugged orally at those who have criticized him and his party, calling those critics "that happily limited class of left-wing politicians to whom party strife is the breath of their nostrils."

But, even while serving notice that he had no intention of relinquishing the reins of leadership, either of his party or his country, the 70-year-old prime minister made it clear that he would not exclude members of other parties from any government he might head.

TIME IS MIXED
UP AT LANSINGState Offices Set Clock
Back An Hour, City
Stays Fast

Lansing, March 15 (AP)—The state board of agriculture today ordered Michigan State colleges to operate on slow (Central War) time, and the Lansing State Journal said the city of East Lansing, probably would follow suit, while the capital city of Lansing, just four miles west, remains on fast (Eastern War) time.

The development is another in the confusing tangle of events resulting from the legislature's action in ordering the entire state to adopt slow time. Legislators have had warnings conveyed informally but nonetheless seriously to state governmental units that they would suffer reprisal if they defied the order.

Rep. Fred L. Kircher, Lansing Republican, said the depths of legislative feelings on the subject are reflected in growing opposition to the appropriation of money for postwar construction of a new state office building here, in reprisal against the city of Lansing for refusing to go on slow time.

Effective at midnight Saturday, all state office and department clocks are to be switched to slow time, while the rest of the city is on fast time.

Key Transportation
Workers Included
In Draft Deferment

Washington, March 15 (AP)—The government's policy committee on occupational deferments recommended today a drastic increase in exemptions for key transportation workers under 30.

This would be the first break in the month-old limit on deferments for younger men. The rule has been deferments for no more than 30 per cent of an industry's men in the under 30 group.

The number of deferments recommended in the various transportation fields and the percentage of their total in 2-A or 2-B draft classifications:

Railroads, 40,800, 85 per cent; airlines, 4,860, 90 per cent; inland waterways, 90 per cent for Great Lakes and 80 per cent for other operations.

Coast Guards And
Marines Granted

Washington, March 15 (AP)—The senate approved and sent to the White House today legislation establishing the rank of full general in the marine corps and full admiral in the coast guard.

First recipients of the new four-star grade will be Lt. Gen. Alexander A. Vandegrift, commander of the marine corps, and Vice Admiral R. B. Waesche, coast guard commander.

YANKS SMASH
WHOLE FRONTNAZIS SAY 100,000
U. S. SOLDIERS NOW
IN STRUGGLE

By Austin Bealmear

Paris, Friday, March 16 (AP)—The U. S. First army deepened its Rhine bridgehead to six miles yesterday, seizing command of more than a mile of the great six-lane military highway to the Ruhr and the Germans said five American armies were striking along 235 miles of the blazing western front.

The drive beyond the Rhine gained more than a mile during the day, swept up four more German towns and stabbed into five others. The Germans said the new U. S. 15th army had sprung into action on the bridgehead, where 100,000 American soldiers now were massed.

Lull Ended

The U. S. Seventh army broke a long lull with a general assault on a 50-mile front from the Saar to the Rhine in a synchronized attack with the U. S. Third army, and gained three miles or more, driving the Germans into retreat to the Siegfried line.

The U. S. Third army smashed six miles south from its newlywon Moselle River bridgehead near Coblenz in an offensive that was cutting in 80 miles or so behind the Siegfried line facing the Seventh army front.

Already the U.S. had sealed off the Rhine transit city of Coblenz, was nearing the Rhine south of the city, was pinching off the enemy's "little Ruhr"—the Saar basin—and was challenging the Nazis' last 150-mile grip on the Rhine's west bank.

Ninth Thrown Back

The Third army was by far the deepest into Germany of any Allied army in the west. As it closed on Boppard, an ancient Rhine center six miles south of Coblenz, it was 80 miles north of the Saar border, and nearly 70 miles west of the enemy frontier.

Enemy account said the U. S. Ninth army, drawn up in force on the Rhine, had stormed across into the Ruhr at Duisburg and had been thrown back to the west bank in hand-to-hand combat.

The Rhine crossing by the First army at Remagen, where the Americans now hold 11 miles or more of the east bank, was so solid that it was announced officially the danger of its being dislodged now was past.

The Germans were throwing in tank-led counterattacks, trying to hold back the tide from the superhighway, which the enemy himself said the Americans had completely severed at the northeast corner of the bridgehead.

So far the Germans had been unable to aim a single major counterblow and it appeared they were hard put to marshal their forces over cratered highways and bomb-wrecked villages east of the Rhine.

LAMPREY ARE FISH MENACE

Predators Are Worrying Fishermen Of Great Lakes Region

Lamprey are increasing in Great Lakes waters to such an extent as to constitute a grave menace to the edible fish life. 40 commercial fishermen agreed at the spring meeting of the Michigan Fish Producers association at Traverse City this week. The eels attach themselves to other fish and cause their death.

Attending the meeting from this district were: Roy Jensen, Escanaba; William Sellman, Manistique; Charles Hagen, St. Ignace; and Ray Adair, Munising. Mr. Jensen reported that the lamprey is on the increase in Green bay waters, where it has been attacking suckers. Recently, an Escanaba fisherman found one that was 26 inches long. The lamprey is also regarded as a menace to game fish.

Various bills affecting the fishing industry were discussed at the Traverse City meeting and recommendations made to the legislature. Of interest to fishermen in this area is the proposal to increase the herring net mesh from 2 1/2 to 2 3/8 inches, which was approved at the meeting in the interest of conservation. The fishermen, however, voiced their disapproval of the proposal to lengthen the closed season on lake trout. The fishermen expressed willingness to cooperate in the closing of certain waters to commercial fishing as asked by sport fishermen but stated that closed areas frequently are a menace to commercial species because they afford protection to predatory species. Other resolutions passed defended modern types of pond nets, requested the state to continue hatchery programs and recommended to Washington that the Coast Guard rescue equipment be improved after the war to provide better protection to commercial netters.

Cpl. Edgar Coleman Is Dead In France

Cpl. Edgar R. Coleman, brother of John Coleman, 713 South 17th street, Escanaba, was reported dead in France on Feb. 14. Cpl. Coleman, in a letter written Feb. 5, complained of a bad cold and fever.

The telegram from the war department did not say that he had died in action, or as the result of wounds, and his family is convinced that he died of illness. Overseas for the last 19 months, Cpl. Coleman, 22, was with the engineers. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Coleman, live in Rockford, Ill. He has four brothers in the service.

Structural sections as long as 480 feet were towed to the coast of France to provide harbors for the invasion.

New Bombing Techniques

THE real horror of modern war is revealed by the extensive development of new type bombs being used by the Allied air forces both in the European and the Pacific theaters of war. The one-ton bomb, first of the block busters, brought genuine awe when its development was first announced. Since then there have been even heavier bombs, two-ton, four-ton, six-ton and finally the 11 ton demolition bomb used by the RAF for the first time against the enemy near Munster, Germany Wednesday.

In the Pacific theater, the high explosive, demolition bombs are used extensively to pave the way for invasion forces but the aerial warfare against Japan proper has shifted from demolition bombing to fire bombing and its success has already vastly exceeded expectations. The huge incendiary raid on Tokyo recently caused an estimated 50 times more damage on vital centers of war production than all of the previous demolition bombing raids. Since then great incendiary raids have been concentrated on Nagoya and Osaka, other great war industrial areas of the Japanese homeland.

The progress made by Allied scientists in the improvement of demolition bombs has been matched by the developments in better incendiary bombs. Jellyed gasoline bombs, which spread fire over wide areas, have proved particularly effective against the congested areas of the Japanese homeland.

The Japanese opened the war against the United States by the bombing raid on Pearl Harbor and the Germans first showed the effectiveness of massed demolition bombing by the tonnage they spewed on London. Both of the enemy nations are now learning just how effective the modern aerial bomb really can be.

It's Worth Trying

GOVERNOR KELLY has invited the governors of Wisconsin and Minnesota and the premier of Ontario to meet with him and spokesmen of the tourist and resort industry on Mackinac Island in July to discuss a cooperative program for attracting vacationists to the upper lakes region.

This is a plan that has been suggested at various times in the past, but Governor Kelly has enlarged its scope by including Ontario, which is not a bad idea. The Canadian province has been doing a bang-up job of tourist promotion for several years, and the three lake states have benefited to a considerable extent from the traffic it has created.

Working together, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Ontario could develop a tremendous appeal for vacationists. There would be some financial wrinkles to iron out in organizing a cooperative program of this kind, but these problems should not be insurmountable. That it can be done was demonstrated long ago by the formation of the New England Council, whose activities are financed by several states with beneficial results.

Tougher on Soldiers

AN ARMY captain from Ironwood, convicted of receiving money for the sale of army gasoline on the black market in France, was dismissed from the service and sentenced to 12 years at hard labor. Another soldier from Pittsburgh was given a life sentence for black marketing in gasoline. There are other service men who have been given stiff penalties for this offense.

Investigation has shown that most of these soldiers were not criminals. Most of them came from respectable homes in small towns in America. They probably felt they were not committing any serious crime, since they likely had read and heard about widespread black market activities back home.

The woman who buys outlawed nylon stockings, the man who uses black market gasoline, and the housewife who buys steaks at fancy prices, without ration points, are equally as guilty as the convicted soldiers.

When a service man reads of civilians unwilling to put up with wartime restrictions here, he doesn't hesitate to dip into the black market overseas. If civilians can get away with it, so can he. Of course, nobody really gets away with it. Even if you don't get a 10-year sentence to prison, you're paying with boys' lives in prolonging the duration of the war. The soldiers are bound to get the worst of it, however.

Democracy in Action

THE town meeting plan for the discussion of public affairs still functions in New England communities as it did in early Colonial times.

Its order of business is not confined to strictly local matters. For instance, citizens of New Hampshire gather in town meetings throughout the state on Tuesday to express their opinions on an international postwar peace plan modeled on the Dumbarton Oaks proposal.

A total of 225 town meetings voted on the proposal, the incomplete returns showing 13,847 in favor of the peace plan and 751 opposed. The New Hampshire procedure might well be followed in other states of the Union so that people would have an opportunity to express their sentiments. Then, there would be less chance that the United States Senate would decide such vital issues on the basis of propaganda and other pressure tactics employed by a selfish minority.

The people of New Hampshire have told the nation how they think on the problem of preserving world peace.

ANOTHER WAR CASUALTY

(Sault Ste. Marie News)

Sault Ste. Marie saw the loss of Soo Line local train No. 87 Thursday, when the single combination coach which constituted the train left here in train No. 7 for points west. Possibly the coach, which is a converted parlor car, will be stored at Gladstone until the end of the war or after.

Superintendent Peterson's statement of savings to the company by cancelling trains 86 and 87 is impressive, and there is little chance that they will be reinstated for some time. The request of the Michigan Public Service Commission that the service be continued until it has time to investigate apparently was not heeded.

Rudyard and other towns along the Soo Line's Peninsula division will feel the loss of these trains, and so will persons using connections to Marquette range points and the Copper Country. People going that way, however, can take the morning bus for St. Ignace and board the morning South Shore train there, at somewhat extra expense of course. Returning, they can make connection at St. Ignace with the night bus for the Sault.

It is possible but not likely that schedules for South Shore mixed trains No. 18 and 19 will be arranged so that connections can be made at Soo Junction with South Shore trains No. 1 and 2. Two bus lines to Marquette operate out of this city daily, with morning schedule via St. Ignace and Rapid River, and with Copper Country connections, while the other runs direct to Marquette and Ishpeming. So it appears that nobody will suffer greatly if train timetables are left as they are.

Train employees on the former 86 and 87 no doubt will find good berths with their company elsewhere. Bus companies will benefit.

Well, I've finally found a bright side to the housing shortage: did you ever stop to think how it has improved domestic relations?

For example, I know a young couple next door who wanted to separate but neither could find any place to go. So they kissed and made up.

And another thing, it's pretty futile for a wife to go home to mother, when going home to mother consists only of stepping into the next room.

The housing shortage has practically brought back vaudeville. We used to talk about acts being booked into houses. Now it's the same way with relatives.

Uncle John can do a split week with a nephew in Pomona and then make a sleeper jump to a niece in Sacramento. Of course, if he brings along enough cigarettes, he's sure to be held over for a second week.

HANDBOOK OF PRACTICAL ENGLISH

Mrs. J. A. Y., Fort Smith: "Will you please correct the popular misuse of the words 'less' and 'fewer'?"

Answer: Less refers to quantity, degree, or time. Fewer refers only to things that can actually be counted.

Wrong: "Less than fifteen persons attended the meeting." Right: Fewer than fifteen persons attended the meeting.

Wrong: "We used fewer coal this year." Right: We used less coal this year.

R. B., New Orleans: "I'm never certain whether to use 'who's' or 'whose.' Please give us one of your common-sense explanations."

Answer: You need only to remember that the apostrophe in who's is the sign that a letter has been omitted—whose's is the contraction of "who is."

The word whose is the possessive form of who. The correct usages are:

He asked, "Who's (who is) there?" She asked, "Whose house is that?"

Her name is in "Who's Who." He is one of the Smiths whose names are in "Who's Who."

Note: Strictly speaking, who and whose refer only to persons; that and which refer to animals or inanimate things. However, in some cases whose may be used if it helps to avoid a clumsy or stilted construction.

Awkward: "He complained to the owner of the dog, the barking of which had kept the neighborhood awake."

Improved and permissible: He complained to the owner of the dog whose barking had kept the neighborhood awake.

There is still some objection to this use, however, and such sentences may be reworded so as to avoid it: He complained to the owner of the dog that its barking had kept the neighborhood awake.

World Events Analyzed

BY MARQUIS CHILDS

Rome—An endless source of speculation here is why the Germans kept large numbers of their best troops in northern Italy when, by withdrawing to the passes of the Alps, they could have held that frontier with only a few divisions.

The industrial plants of the north are one answer. But the volume of production in Milan and other industrial centers is not sufficient to justify such an illogical use of military manpower. In fact, recent reports indicate that, through repeated Allied bombing and through sabotage by the Italian underground, production in the Po valley has been greatly curtailed.

It may suffice to supply Marshal Kesselring's 26 or 27 divisions, but there is little left over. And if there were any surplus, continuous bombing of the passes of the Alps has made it all but impossible to get it into Hitler's besieged Reich.

—ITALIAN PARTISANS HELP—
The decline of production in German-held Italy—by far the most productive part of the country—points up the extremely effective work being done by Italian Partisans. The Partisans in the rugged Apennines have shown extraordinary courage and tenacity. By their knowledge, skill and boldness, they have saved countless American lives.

Supplies are dropped to them from the air under conditions which subject fliers to great hazards. For obvious reasons, little can be said about this now.

In many ways, the Italians are helping the Allied war effort. Military men with whom I have talked in this theater almost all agree that Italian divisions are performing a valuable service. The pressure on the Allied line that runs across the peninsula is great and Italian regiments have helped to relieve that pressure.

Behind the lines, in connection with the vast tasks of supply and transportation, you see them working everywhere. It is true that their tempo is slow. As one GI put it, the man who said Rome wasn't built in a day must have watched Italians at work. But their help in the hard drudgery of the war has meant an important saving in Allied manpower.

Italian service troops, using mules, have carried munitions and supplies right up to foxholes over almost impassable mountain trails. Again, their knowledge and experience have counted for a great deal.

—DESTRUCTION IN NORTH—

All this is evidence of the continuing vitality of the Italian people in spite of Fascism, disgrace and defeat. Perhaps, when once again the north and the south are united, there will be a new focus for Italian hope, which today seems to have died utterly.

The destruction in the north will, if possible, be even worse than the destruction in the south. What has not been knocked down by Allied bombing will be demolished by the Germans, who have had ample time to prepare for the kind of demolition they do with Teutonic thoroughness.

Another possible reason, incidentally, why Kesselring's forces have held on in northern Italy is the fact that more than 400,000 Italian workers, including many of the ablest and most highly skilled, are working in Germany. To abandon all of Italy would be to risk the loss of their productive capacity.

The road back for the Italian people is bound to be a long one. Their moral bankruptcy is painfully evident. Even hard-boiled GIs are shocked by young Italian boys who, in parts of southern Italy, solicit on the streets for their sisters.

The extent of thievery is appalling. U. S. property must be protected at all times. If jeeps and command cars cannot be stolen because they are locked and double-locked, then leather is cut off the seats and every part removed that can be pried off. Pilfering of American supplies is serious. Unfortunately, here as in France, some Americans in uniform have participated in looting and in rackets which extend into the upper reaches of the black market.

Those who have followed the progress of the liberation from the beginning say there are geographical variations in the reactions of the Italians. In Florence, for example, something of the pride of northern Italy enters in.

—CHAPLIN FILM POPULAR—

One curious example of differing reactions is cited. Currently, one of the most popular of the old films that were barred in Fascist Italy is Charlie Chaplin's "The Great Dictator," with Jack Oakie's broad take-off of Mussolini. In Naples, audiences almost literally roll on the floor with laughter. But in Florence, in the north, they weep in shame at the thought that they ever surrendered their freedom to such a gross caricature of a human being as Mussolini.

Italy today is a museum of the horrors of Fascism. No worse punishment could be devised for Mussolini, who now hides behind Hitler, than to bring him back to see the plight of the people he debauched and deceived.

The liberation of the north may be long in coming. There are many who believe that organized resistance by the Germans will persist in Italy even after it has ended elsewhere. And Italy's ordeal will only just have begun when the entire country is finally freed.

The recent escape of General Roatta, former chief of staff under the Fascist regime, and the violence that followed are evidence, on the one hand, of the weakness of the government and, on the other, of the unrest that is close beneath the surface of the country. The government could not cope with the situation but for the presence of Allied troops.

There's More Than One Way of Killing a Goose

Good Morning!

By The Bugler

SEQUEL—Mrs. Robert Schwartz, Daily Press correspondent of Nahma, the other day reported a sequel to a Good Morning column item which brought two servicemen cousins together in the far-flung vastness of the Pacific.

Several weeks ago this column reported on the work Dale Vinnette of Escanaba is doing with the U. S. Navy in the Pacific, where he is in charge of a diving crew. The information about Dale came in a letter he had addressed to John Mitchell of Escanaba. In the letter Dale told of rigging up his diving outfit of rigging up his Japanese sampan, and described the sampan so that even a land-lubber could picture it in his mind's eye.

And then from Nahma came Mrs. Schwartz report as follows: "Staff Sergeant Robert Tobin, of the U. S. Marines, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Tobin of Nahma, who is stationed on Guam, received his promotion to that rating recently. He has been in the South Pacific 14 months."

"He had the chance to see his cousin, Dale Vinnette of Escanaba, and the way this came about was from reading a clipping his mother had enclosed in a letter. The clipping was from the Good Morning column, the story of Dale by the Bugler."

"From his barracks window S/Sgt. Tobin could see Dale's boat. In no time at all he contacted him and they had a nice visit."

PROLIFIC POET—Lloyd Ketchum, poet laureate of the Masonic election tournament of Gladstone, is a prolific wooer of the muse to say the least. Each week he prepares an original poem and recites it for the entertainment of the weekly Masonic smear meeting.

Before we get to a sample of Ketchum's rhyme, perhaps it should be explained that smear is a card game. It is not that which has been attributed to the PAC or the Chicago Tribune during steam-heated election campaigns. It may help to jog your memory by mentioning that smear is also called, by the uninited, high, low, jack and the game.

The night of March 5 Ketchum presented a verse titled "Hiro-Hito Calling Hitler." Incidentally, it is somewhat disappointing to find that he did not call him anything—he just telephoned. Conan E. Fisher, smear tournament chairman, said that Ketchum had consented to the removal of some of the "strong adjectives" in the poem if it was to see the light of print.

Herewith is presented the verse, minus not only the "strong adjectives" but nine of its eleven stanzas—for the sake of brevity.

Hitler complains to Hiro-Hito:

INTO THE PAST

10 Years Ago—1935

Miss Agnes Chandonnet of Escanaba, in company with Miss Alida Dupont, of Gladstone, will leave Sunday for a visit in New Orleans, Jacksonville, Miami, St. Petersburg, and other southern points.

A special program which will be in the form of a playlet, "God's Garden of Juniors," will be presented Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the First Methodist Episcopal church by the children of the Junior church and their teachers and directors. The program will be presented by a cast which includes Mary Elizabeth Hibbard, Mrs. Wallace Hibbard, Mrs. William Anthony, Margaret Paeske, Belle Erickson, Arthur Bowers, John Mayer, Donna Sargent, Bonnie Foster, Ruth Margaret Mayer, Betty Jane McMartin, Miss Dorothy Ferguson, Charles McMartin and Marilyn Watson. Anna Mae Loveland, Genevieve Hansen, Mary Ruth Strahl, Evelyn Hansen, Virginia Sargent, Rachel Anthony, Ella Erickson, Kenneth Lucas, Maurice Strahl, Jr., Dick Bowers, Dorothy Paeske, Bob Bowers.

30 Years Ago—1925
"Ireland, Old Ireland," a song, written by Joseph Greenfield, director of the Escanaba Municipal band, and Joe Keast, of Crystal Falls, is on sale as a special St. Patrick's novelty at the Lang & Hess music store. The song had an especially large sale in the cities of Cork and Dublin, in Ireland, and has been used in this country by a number of well-known singers, including John McCormack.

A woman candidate for the office of Gladstone city commissioner was placed in the field yesterday when the nomination of Mrs. Frederick Huber, well-known business woman, was placed in circulation, preparatory to being filed in the city clerk's office Monday.

through the war so far. Obviously the weather can't be counted on forever." And it directs attention to the possibility of the "law of averages catching up with our crop production—in the form of adverse weather."

Unusually favorable weather the last few years has made it possible for farmers to increase production despite manpower and machinery shortages. One bad season, however, can cut production 30 per cent.

If that "bad year" is 1945, you are going to either fondle the stove of home-grown vegetables in your basement—or tighten your belt.

Plan to have a backyard garden this year. Or if your yard is not large enough, consult City Forester Bob Clayton, local victory garden chairman, about obtaining a plot of ground offered by the city. You'll get a free supply of water at that city plot, too.

RED CROSS THERE—More than 60 tons of Red Cross clothing and emergency supplies have already arrived on Luzon, comprising the first shipment of nearly one million garments being sent to the Philippines by the American Red Cross. The supplies were distributed immediately to civilian and military casualties in and near Manila.

The Red Cross wastes no time. It follows the military operations so closely that it sometimes finds itself in the thick of battle. Military authorities have come to rely upon the Red Cross for certain services which are difficult and time-consuming.

Among the first supplies arriving at Manila were 10,000 bed shirts, which were distributed to military and civilian internees and prisoners of war, and to civilian non-casualties upon recommendation of the army.

Additional Red Cross supplies are now in shipment from the United States. When Gen. MacArthur returned to the Philippines he had the Red Cross at his side—and at the side of your serviceman. In giving to the Red Cross you help those who fight your war, or are casualties of its fury.

NEW YORK—Dr. I. Lubin of the President's staff will leave soon for an important post in Moscow. Gov. Stassen's speech in Minnesota will not be his last one before he returns to the Pacific. He probably will make his big speech in New York City after the United Nations Conference. The plane on which Lt. Gen. Harman was lost in the Pacific is the same ship which was used by Eleanor Roosevelt during her trip to the islands. Gus, the Stork Club's chef who became Gen. Stilwell's cook in Burma—he once successfully bawled out the general for not finishing a special dish he prepared for the General—will join Stilwell here.

VICE - PRESIDENT TRUMAN dropped in at a luncheon given for some of the Bastogne heroes Saturday afternoon at the 21 Club. "They looked upon me as an old war reject," the Vice-President told them, "so they put me into a Washington job instead." Lt. Col. Bob Wagner Jr., the Senator's son, is the Democratic dark horse for the Boro Presidency of Manhattan. Tom Clark is expected to resign as chief of the Criminal Div. of the Dept. of Justice as soon as Colepaugh and Gimpel, the convicted Nazi spies he prosecuted, are executed. Edward Ennis will succeed him. H. Allen Smith will write the Fred Allen biography.

PAUL V. McNUTT, head of the WMC now supervising the nation's curfew, wasn't in favor of it. "But the sooner it's obeyed by all the sooner it will be lifted," he said the other night. McNUTT, who recently returned from a trip to the European front, wasn't given the customary assimilated military rank in case of capture. He holds an official rank of colonel in the reserves. Senator Chandler will announce that America's war production not only is larger than the total output of our enemies but of our Allies as well. DURING THE invasion of two Jima, Admiral Kelly Turner's flagship carried additional correspondents, observers, etc. An ensign collect from each of these transients 50 cents for their well-laundered linen, and these receipts were duly logged. Halfway down the log list was the notation: "Name—Forrestal, James V. Rating—Sec. Navy. Am't collected—$50." Those official announcements from Washington, reporting Donald Nelson's retirement last week, were premature. As of last night, Nelson is staying on until the end of the war. The Italian prisoners of war at Fort Hamilton will have shows brought to them by the War Dept.'s civilian sponsor, Leo Posen, who once popularized Harlem's night-life.

MARTIN SHERIDAN, who wrote the Combined American Press story of the Tokyo raid on Saturday, in describing the fires said that he even could smell it. ## The Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON

(Lt. Col. R. S. Allen now on active service)

Washington—One thing long handicapping the Allies in Germany has been the lack of underground opposition to Hitler. Ever since 1933, various anti-Nazi groups have been trying to spawn an effective underground in Germany but with little success.

When Hitler first came to power there were about seven million German Communists, but many of these were snuffed out in the initial blood purges.

Other non-Communist anti-Nazis, composing the most liberal elements in Germany, also fled as the Hitler-Himmler terror was extended to every part of the Reich.

However, the underground blossomed and expanded in 1934 and 1935 until Himmler found out about it and sent his own agents into the organization, capturing the membership lists and ruthlessly shooting down its members.

In 1936, another attempt was made to form a new underground. This time units of only five members were set up with each man knowing only one man outside his own cell. However, the Nazis even broke into these groups and smashed the new organization.

—GUERRILLAS—

In 1938, several underground operators finally managed to penetrate Hitler's Schutzstaffel, the private black shirt army which guarded the Fuehrer. One even came to New York on a vacation, met with American Communists secretly, told them how he was a member of Hitler's personal bodyguard. However, Stalin never gave the signal to bump Hitler off and eventually even these new underground members were destroyed.

—FOREIGN WORK SLAVES—

Today, there are very few Germans inside the Reich the Allies can count on. Stalin in his talks with American Professor Lange in Moscow last summer moodily told how the anti-Nazis have been destroyed, complained that it would take at least a generation to rebuild the German working class movement. As a result the chief hope for a major uprising in Germany today is the six million foreign slave workers Hitler kidnapped from the occupied countries. These workers have been used to build fortifications on the eastern and western front and to work in German factories.

After the big Allied bombing of Berlin several thousand of these foreign workers escaped during the confusion, destroyed several war plants and hid in the wreckage of the bombed-out buildings. Other foreign workers escaping during Allied air raids have joined with deserters from the German army and are now carrying on the first guerrilla warfare inside Germany.

—BRITISH FOMENT SICILIAN UNREST—
Word has leaked from Italy that the British are adopting strange tactics in fomenting the separatist movement in Sicily.

Two hundred thousand American flag posters have appeared in the cafes of Sicily advocating the independence of that strategic island from Italy. But the funny part of it is that the printing of these American flags has been traced to Algiers and the people who paid for them are the British.

Accompanying these U. S. flags are placards reading: "Sicily, the 49th State." In other words, it looks as if the British, knowing the number of Italo-Americans who come from Sicily, are cleverly taking advantage of American sentiment to propose Sicily as the 49th state of the United States.

The importance of Sicily to the British is that it lies astride the sea-lane through the Mediterranean to Suez. The British already have secretly been given the Italian island of Pantelleria and Lampedusa by the Italian armistice, and it has been known for some time that they were secretly financing the separatist movement in Sicily.

—UNNEUTRAL OWI—

The Office of War Information is supposed to be a neutral agency charged with reporting the news of what the government is doing in wartime. It is not supposed to lean toward any particular branch of the government.

Certain government officials are hopping mad, however, at the way OWI Deputy James R. Brackett has been playing the army's game in the manpower fight.

PVT. FEZATTE LOST IN ACTION

Powers Soldier Missing
In Germany Since
March 1

Pvt. Clarence J. Fezatte, 26-year-old son of Mrs. Evelyn Fezatte of Powers, is reported missing in action in Germany since March 1, according to a message received by his wife, the former Beatrice Perry, of Hermansville, who resides at 1142 State street, Marinette.

Private Fezatte had been in military service since June, 1944, and went overseas in November, 1944, after training at Camp Blanding, Fla. He was with the First army and had seen service in France, Belgium and Germany. Born at LaBranche, November 26, 1918, Private Fezatte attended primary school there and graduated from the Powers-Spalding high school in 1937. He was employed by the Odeal Dairy company at Powers for 18 months before his induction.

Private Fezatte and Miss Perry were married in 1940 and have two sons, Richard, 4, and Perry, 2. Other members of his family include his mother, a brother, Robert, in the Navy serving in the Pacific theatre of operations, and six sisters: Mrs. Henry Dettman of Marinette, Mrs. Raymond Joslin of Green Bay, Mrs. William Sundman of Dearborn, Mich., Mrs. Frank Nowack of Spelling, Mrs. George Halvorsen of Hutchinson, Kan., and Mrs. Edward Linnhart of Powers.

Iron River Folks Remember Wermuth

Iron River—Capt. Arthur Wermuth, "one-man army of Bataan," who was beaten in a Philippine prison camp when he complained of brutal treatment by the Japs of American soldiers, is known in Iron River. He was subject to an Associated Press story yesterday.

A reserve officer, Capt. Wermuth was attached to the former CCC camp at Long Lake before he was called to active duty, about four years ago. He then had the rank of lieutenant. From here Capt. Wermuth went to Fort Brady, where he served for several months before he went to the Philippines.

His friends here recall him as a reckless, rough-and-ready soldier who fought for the things he thought were right. He always defended CCC enrollees, but was quick to reprimand them when they did wrong.

The statement by a Chicago private that Capt. Wermuth "stood up for his men" fits him like a glove in the opinion of Iron River residents who knew him.

The Roving Reporter

By ERNIE PYLE

In the Western Pacific (Delayed)—Now I've had my first experience as a salt-water doughboy. I'll try to tell you about it in a few thousand well-chosen paragraphs.

This series will be about the life aboard an airplane carrier. My carrier was part of that first strike on the Tokyo area, and we helped out at Iwo Jima, too.

We'll start right at the beginning, and within the limits of naval security, I'll try to tell you what living on an aircraft carrier is like, and how long a big task force works when it goes out after the enemy.

First we boarded a plane and flew for a long time, and landed on a tiny coral island, white and glaring in the tropic sun. Tall slanting palm trees waved their green fronds from their topknots.

The island was framed in a wide circle of bright green water. And that was bordered by a thin line of snow-white surf, where the rolling waves beat themselves to a froth over the submerged reef at the edge of the water. And on beyond that, everywhere as far as the eye could see, was the heavy dark blue of the deep, deep ocean.

And out there on that dark blue water, lay the United States fleet. Hundreds and hundreds of ships. The navy says officially that it was the greatest concentration of fighting ships ever assembled in the history of the world. It was something to take your breath away.

True, I have seen bigger fleets. Both in our invasions of Sicily and of Normandy we had more ships. But they were not predominately warships. Mainly they were landing craft and troop-carrying vessels. But these here were fighting ships—the world's mightiest.

Battleships and cruisers and carriers and uncountable destroyers. And all the swarm of escorts and tugs and oilers and repair ships that go with them.

And this wasn't the only fleet. Others started from other anchorages scattered out over the Pacific, hundreds and thousands of miles from us. They started on a time-table schedule, so that they would all converge in the Upper Pacific at the same time.

If you had felt lonely and afraid in anticipation of the ordeal upon which you were setting out, it disappeared when you made yourself a cell in this mighty armada.

For when we bore down upon the waters of Japan and Iwo Jima we were nearly a thousand ships and we were beyond a half a million men!

Whatever happened to you, you would sure have a hell of a lot of company.

A small fast motorboat, its forepart covered with canvas like a prairie schooner, took me from the island to the carrier to which I had been assigned. It was a long way out, and we were half an hour bobbing up and down through the spray.

Ships were so thick we had to weave in and out around them. The water was speckled with small boats running from ship to ship, and back and forth to the island. The weather was hot, and sometimes you stood up and took the spray, because it felt good.

No ship in wartime has its name painted on it. Instead, they go by numbers. Every ship in the navy has both a name and a number, but its name is hidden for the duration. All carriers look alike to the Neophyte, so you pick them out by the number on the bow.

I had asked to be put on a small carrier, rather than a big one. The reasons were many. For one thing, the large ones are so immense and carry such a huge crew that it would be like living in the Grand Central Station. I felt I could get the "feel" of a carrier more quickly, could become more intimately a member of the family, if I were to go on a smaller one.

Also, the smaller carriers have had very little credit and almost no glory, and I've always had a sort of yen for poor little ships that have been neglected.

And also again (although this of course had nothing to do with my choice, of course, of course) there was an old wife's superstition to the effect that the Japs always went for the big carriers first, and ignored the little ones.

Further investigation revealed this to be pure fiction, but what you don't know at the time doesn't hurt you, and I didn't know this at the time. So gaily I climbed aboard my new home—curious, but admittedly uneager for my first taste of naval warfare in the Pacific.

Out Global Plan

(P) Newsfeatures
Girl Scouts of America may have an important part in rehabilitation programs for liberated countries after the war.

Already six Girl Scout executives are working with UNRRA in Egypt and the Near East, forming Scout troops among the children, training leaders, planning widespread organization.

Now under consideration is the project of sending Girl Scout leaders to the Guide International Service in England, which to date has sent some 500 trained Girl Scout workers to liberated areas.

Such ambitious plans bring an eager sparkle to the eyes of America's million-odd Girl Scouts, busily writing letters to fellow Scouts and Guides in such remote spots as China, Russia and Honolulu.

In connection with the 33d birthday of their organization March 12, Girl Scouts selected as their slogan for the week: "Girl Scouting Builds World Friendship."

During the year just past, the girls sent gifts of cash, food and clothing to aid refugee children in Switzerland, France, North Africa, Holland, Belgium, Luxembourg, Russia, Britain and China. Gifts ranged from $1,000 to $10,000 and totaled nearly $50,000.

Lt. Edward Reef Gets Silver Star Award at Leyte

With the 24th Infantry (Victory) Division in the Philippines—Second Lieutenant Edward F. Reef, of 210 South 9th Street, Escanaba, Michigan, has been awarded the coveted Silver Star for gallantry in action on Leyte Island, the Philippines.

"Lieutenant Reef," the citation read, "as a volunteer member of a combined Army-Navy reconnaissance and demolition party, went to the invasion shore with a party of swimmers the day prior to the landing of the main force, to determine the presence of underwater obstacles or other defensive installations.

"During the early afternoon while the swimmers were working Lieutenant Reef, in full view of the enemy less than 200 yards away, patrolled the shore line for two hours in a landing craft, manning a machine gun and drawing fire from enemy artillery, mortar, and small arms with utter disregard for his personal safety, for the purpose of locating their positions and to divert their attention from the reconnoitering swimmers.

"His report to the landing team commander aboard the task force command ship contained valuable information as to enemy defenses and dispositions which materially contributed to the success of the landing operation.

"Lieutenant Reef's outstanding gallantry in action is worthy of the highest traditions of the military service."

Clayton St. Martin Returns From 33 Months Overseas

Pfc. Clayton D. St. Martin, son of Mr. and Mrs. George St. Martin, 110 Chocoy street, arrived home last week from San Francisco where he landed recently after having been in the Pacific battle area for the past 33 months.

He enlisted in the Marines in June of 1942 with a group of ten other local boys and was sent overseas after his basic, never coming home on furlough.

Among the invasions that St. Martin took an active part in were the invasions of Gilbert Islands, Peleliu and Guam. The only person from home that he saw in his 33 months of duty was Joseph Piehl, pharmacist's mate in the navy, whom he met on Peleliu and on the way home he met Joseph Pearis of the Marines in Pearl Harbor.

In his souvenir collection which was quite interesting was a Jap hand grenade, about the size of a large spool of thread, and the Marines used to lay and wait for the Japs to throw at them because they always had warning when one was coming on account of the fuse cap that had to be hit against their steel helmets, making a clicking noise, and giving the Marines time to be all set to throw them back at the Japs. On Guam he also picked up a Jap white waist-band with the words, "A million hearts beat as one," that was supposed to protect them from all injury. When going through some Jap's personal belongings he picked up a Geisha girl's head scarf and kimono which proved that the Jap troops on these captured islands had intended on staying there, and brought their women with them.

After spending his 30-day furlough with his parents, Pfc. St. Martin will report to Norfolk, Va. to be reassigned to duty.

The St. Martins have another son in the Marine corps, S. Sgt. George St. Martin, Jr., who is now on active duty in the Pacific.

Sgt. Raymond Long Tells of Life In a Philippine Village

A description of life in one of the Philippine villages is contained in a letter written by First Sergeant Raymond Long to his wife who is residing with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dorrance Peterson, 1228 Stephenson avenue. Sgt. Long is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Marion Long of Gladstone.

The major part of his letter follows:

"I'm going to tell you of the wonderful experiences I've had in the last three days. We had the afternoon off the other day, so went visiting the surrounding villages.

"First off we met a guerrilla captain, Filipino, and a white guerrilla captain, who have been in the Philippines ever since they fell into the hands of the Japs. They invited us to their dance and we were very curious and wanted to see how everything goes here. Well we met the mayor of the town at the square where the dance was to be held, and he asked us over to see his house. Gladly for us curious cats. We went into his home and there met Americans, guerrillas and kids. Just like a fair back home. Well everything was going fine when a guerrilla lieutenant took us by the arm and led us into a large room where a family sized table was set and told us to sit down and eat. I didn't want to refuse anything so I took a little of everything. Especially the roast chicken. I was for the experience anyway. We were waiting for the dance to begin but it was too late and we had to leave. The captain invited us back again, so yesterday being the fiesta day we started out again. To a different village, but we met our guerrilla captain and we were in solid. He took and led us to a house and we went. It was supposed to be the best house in the village and let me tell you it was nice. The owner had two pianos, furniture and pictures and everything that makes up a home. The captain played the piano so we all gathered around and sang. Presently we went into the next room to eat. This table was set to perfection. We were hungry for we had started out before supper and didn't have a chance to fill up. Well we filled up plenty—first coffee, cooked and hot, next roast chicken, next roast pork, next beef prepared two ways—what was in funny I don't know but they really tasted good. They had pickled pa pias, that takes the place of our pickles, and with rice it was very tasty. This time we weren't bashful at all and really ate. As soon as our plates were empty, the women would be right there to fill it up again. It was a meal all long remember. Bananas setting in the middle of the table, coffee, water and some kind of plum jam for desert. Like ravished wolves we just about cleaned every dish on the table, and had to finally refuse the dishes that came shooting over your shoulder as soon as your dish was cleared. We then went into the living room and more singing and visiting. After several hours of that we went to the large town square to the dance. Women beautifully dressed and men with their colored silk shirts and their white slacks and us with our duster-cakes, worn green fatigues with rifles slung around our necks. What a crowd. Well the dance started and it was being held in honor of the guerrillas and the American liberators. We stood and watched and it seems funny to see people dancing and hear music from an orchestra. Yes, they played American songs and they had several singers, but they have an entirely different version of singing than the singing back home. It's the same songs, but they hold the notes longer and roll them on from one note to the next. Only one thing lacking—yup you guessed it—we were stone sober. They don't sell any liquor during celebrations anymore, for everyone carries a rifle and when these bottomless drinkers try to drink this Filipino wine or liquor they do crazy things. Almost every house along the road has a table out in front with wine, eggs and bananas for sale. They'd rather trade for cigarettes, though."

Colonel of Slain Paratrooper Writes To Aunt of Youth

A letter of condolence has been received by Mrs. Alfred Soderman, 602 North Eighth street, aunt of Pfc. Francis Doneau, U. S. paratrooper, who lost his life in Belgium January 22, 1945, from Col. Roy E. Lindquist of the 508th Parachute Infantry.

The main portion of the letter follows:

"You have been informed of the death of your nephew, Pfc. Francis J. Doneau, ASN, 16020309, who was killed in action 22 January 1945 in Belgium during our campaign in that country. No words can adequately express our feelings of sympathy with you in your loss. I can only impart to you as a partial consolation the fact that your nephew died as a soldier, a hero, performing his duty as only a paratrooper can for his regiment and his country. It will comfort you to know that every soldier of this regiment while in Ireland, England, France, Holland and Belgium conducted themselves in such manner that our battle accomplishments will go down in military history as outstanding and extraordinary. In your participation you can also be proud of his participation and performance as a soldier."

"It was inevitable that many of the fine men of this regiment were to pay with their lives for our successes and accomplishments. Only fighting soldiers like your nephew could have made possible the breaching and penetration of the continental defenses. . . ."

BUCKMAN TO SEEK OFFICE

Business Will Oppose Peterson For Place On Commission

After some confusing maneuvering over provisions of the city charter which for a time appeared to bar his name from the ballot for the April 2 election, Albert Buckman has emerged as a candidate for the place on the city commission which is to be filled this spring. In special session last night the commission voted unanimously to certify him as a candidate.

At the commission's original certifying meeting it was found that Buckman's nominating petition contained more names than provisions of the charter permitted and the petition was declared invalid.

Buckman asked for a reconsideration and a favorable opinion by the city attorney led to last night's decision.

Buckman is a former railroad worker who 12 years ago entered the business field here. He is a lifelong resident of Gladstone, a taxpayer, married and the father of three children.

This is his first venture into the political field. In the election he will oppose Commissioner Ole Peterson, who is seeking reelection to the commission for a three-year term.

Crystal Falls Upset By L'Anse, 46-25, In Basketball Semifinals

NORWAY TAKES NEWBERRY FIVE

Trenary And Bergland Clash For Class E Title Saturday

Ishpeming, Mich., March 15 (AP)—L'Anse staged an upset here tonight by defeating Crystal Falls, 46 to 25, in the Class C semifinals of the Upper Peninsula basketball tournament.

The victory moved L'Anse into the Class C finals Saturday night with Norway, which upset Newberry, 42 to 39, in the other semi-final match.

Trenary and Bergland clash for the Class E title Saturday, the former having eliminated Champion, 52 to 25, and the latter upsetting DeTour 50 to 22, in semi-final matches tonight.

Lippy Leo Takes Over Second Sack
Bear Mountain, N. Y., March 15 (AP)—Leo Durocher hopes it won't be necessary to play in the Brooklyn infield this year but the 39-year-old manager took over second base in today's skeleton infield drill.

With his waistline slimmed from 36 1/4 inches to 33 1/2 and his weight trimmed to 175, Lippy Leo was in his best physical condition in years.

Durocher's name had been included among the list of signed players contracts handed out from Brooklyn headquarters although he was not on the roster. It is no secret that Deacon Branch Rickey would look upon a little infidelity by Leo with fatherly interest.

It would be wise not to leap at conclusions regarding Durocher because much of the enthusiasm may wear off by summer. Leo's presence at second was easily explainable. There was nobody else around. However, that the same situation could continue if players show too much reluctance about reporting.

Side-Trip Exhibition Baseball Games Out

BY BUS HAM

Washington, March 15 (AP)—Big league officials today completed plans by proposing cancellation of all pre-season exhibitions involving "side-trip" transportation.

Ford Frick and Will Harridge, National and American League heads, said that a recommendation to this effect will be made to their clubs to relieve the burden on wartime transportation.

Their announcement of baseball's second voluntary travel curtailment came out of a conference with Col. J. Monroe Johnson, director of the office of defense transportation. Clark Griffith, Washington Senators' owner, also attended the meeting.

No estimate was made of the number of games that will be cancelled. The particular type of game ruled out is that which calls for a trip from one camp to another camp in a different town. Thus the Washington Senators, training here, won't go to Frederick, Md., about 45 miles, to meet the Philadelphia Athletics.

Rejuggling of schedules will be under this rearrangement of games which may be played. Intra-camp games where two teams are training in the same vicinity such as the New York Yankees and Boston Red Sox at Atlantic City. They may play as many games as they like.

Games on the way home from camp if such contests are played at points on a direct route home.

(This is one of the principal changes and will enable, as an illustration, the Boston Braves, training in Washington, to stop off at such places as Wilmington, Philadelphia, Scranton and New Haven on the way home.)

Intra-city games once the teams reach home such as the Yankees vs. Giants in New York, White Sox vs. Cubs in Chicago, Browns vs. Cardinals in St. Louis.

(Frick and Harridge said this may work a slight hardship on one-team cities like Washington, Detroit, Cincinnati, and Cleveland but these teams probably will stay in camp longer or play more games en route home.)

There is no change in the status of games at army or navy camps. They still may be played if the military provides transportation.

Schedules hot off the press show a total of 142 spring games, 23 of which either involve service teams or will be played at service sites.

Horse Racing Ban To Be Lifted Soon, Promoters Assured
New York, March 15 (AP)—Assurance that the government will lift the ban on horse racing as soon as possible was given to the board of directors of the Thoroughbred Racing Association today by its members who have conferred recently with the Office of War Mobilization in Washington.

Members of the board, including President Harry A. Parr, 3rd of Baltimore, said officials in Washington definitely are friendly to racing and have every intention of lifting the ban when they deem it proper. Before the ban is lifted, however, members of the association will discuss with the owners the conditions under which racing will be resumed.

BOMBS, HAIRS AWAY
London (AP)—Bombs, rationing, overwork and lack of sunshine, tend to contribute towards falling hair, according to some hairdressers in London where business is at a wartime peak.

Soldiers Who Lost Arms and Legs Put On Field Day Show

Battle Creek, March 15 (AP)—Patients not yet well enough to take part filled Percy Jones hospital field house here today to cheer on approximately 400 hospital mates who participate in the institution's first field day.

Enthusiasm at times exceeded that of big stadium football games. The men, some without an arm or leg—others recovering from various types of wounds, played basketball, volley ball, ping-pong, bowled, wrestled, swam and boxed. They received their wounds on battlefields all over the world.

A basketball team, composed of men who have lost an arm, put up a stiff fight against a team of amputee patients, who won the first event, 10 to 6. The ability of the amputees to shoot baskets, dribble, and guard brought howls of delight from the audience.

Sgt. Ralph Roth, 25, of Donnelly, Minn., who lost a leg in the Italian campaign, came out on top today despite an artificial limb, to win the under the basket shooting with 19 baskets in 30 seconds. Sergeant Roth also tied with two others on the leg amputee free-throw shooting with 7 out of a possible 15, and he starred on the basketball team.

Lt. Loyis Grower, assistant physical reconditioning officer, in explaining the theory of the meet, said "we treat the men as if they have no handicap. If they miss a basket it is because of poor form or for some other reason, not because they are missing an arm or have an artificial leg."

"We try to develop for each man a specific skill. As any man gets older he tends to rely on one sport, so if these men have a tendency toward a particular sport, we try to make them above average."

Tech. Sgt. Rex Niyahara, 24, whose parents live in Poston, Ariz., an American born Japanese who lost his right arm above the elbow while fighting in Italy, was a member of the basketball team and the free-throw contest. He said that before he received his wound he had played in almost all sports and added, "sooning as I get that arm on here," patting his arm stump, "I'll do better on those baskets, too."

Other winners of the day, and the contests in which they participated, included: Under the basket shots Pvt. Roland Spring, 21, Peoria, Ill., hand injury, 15 baskets; Tech Sgt. Louis Micetich, 24, Chicago, arm amputee, 16 baskets; Corp. Roy J. Klinger, 22, Canton, Ohio, arm amputee, 9 baskets; Pfc. Robert E. Wernet, 22, Pontiac, leg amputee, 6 baskets.

In the free-throw event Pfc. Jack Barnes, 22, Mattoon, Wis., Sgt. Micetich, and Sgt. Miyahara, all arm amputees, made 8 out of 15 baskets. Leg amputees who tied with 7 out of 15 baskets: Sgt. Roth, Pfc. John Tiranno, 19, Buffalo, Pfc. Robert Wernet, 22, Pontiac.

Ping pong—In the singles, Pvt. Donald J. Bender, 23, Detroit, won arm amputee singles, and S/Sgt. Raymond G. Curtis, 32, Ann Arbor, leg amputee singles.

In the ping pong mixed doubles, for amputees—Sgt. Titillio Grestini, 23, Cohoes, N. Y., arm amputee, and Curtis came out on top. Amputee patients winning the ping pong singles were: Pvt. Anthony Bernetti, 23, Joliet, Ill., and Pfc. William Yuhus, 32, Lorraine, Ohio.

Michigan men, playing on the winning basketball team, were: Pfc. Mark Stanley, Wayne, Pfc. Tolleson, L'Anse, Pfc. Charles Butts, Bay Village, and S/Sgt. Vernor Rorabacher, of Wayne.

The Sports Parade

By Ken Gunderman

C. C. Strickland, former high school principal at Gladstone and now at Ravenna, Michigan, has submitted a clipping from the Muskegon Chronicle to the Press Sports department, with the running story of a basketball game played between Muskegon Heights and Holland. Strickland made a notation on the clipping that he thought the running account makes an excellent newspaper presentation of the story of the game, since it shows the play by play scoring from start to finish.

The former Gladstone teacher, a red hot sports fan himself, is 100 per cent correct. The running account is tops in basketball reporting.

Then, you may well ask, why doesn't the Press use the running account system in reporting basketball games in this territory? It is a good question and one that deserves an answer and an explanation. Space limitation, necessitated by tight quotas on newspaper consumption, is one reason why play-by-play reporting of basketball games in this area is not possible, at least during the wartime emergency. It is interesting to note that the Chronicle used the play-by-play system in reporting two games and devoted nearly a column of space to each game. A third game, also reported in the small issue without a play by play report, utilized only a third of a column.

There are other factors, however, equally important, that makes play-by-play reporting of games in this area extremely difficult. One is the time factor. The Press is a morning paper and reports evening basketball games in its issue of the following morning. Very often a single issue of the Press includes reports of numerous games, occasionally as many as a dozen games in one issue. Even if there were sufficient space for play by play reports of each of these games, the amount of time available between 10:30 p. m. when the reports begin coming in to the one a. m. deadline would preclude the preparation of all of the play-by-play reports for the issue of the following morning. Even assuming this were possible, which, unfortunately, it is not, such a system would tie up Press phones so completely that it would be impossible for fans to call in for game scores. The importance of this is readily understandable when one realizes that as many as 300 telephone inquiries are handled in a single night.

Now, if you haven't already thrown up your hands in dismay consider the other factors. An im-the bridgehead. That might be to contain the bridgehead or to muster the force for one big attempt to crush the all-important American foothold east of the Rhine.

With the assault of the U. S. Third army from the north, and the U. S. Seventh army's drive from the south, Hitler's hold on the Saar and the nearby Palatinate, his last west of the Rhine, seemed to be slipping fast.

Lt. Gen. Alexander M. Patch sent his seventh army into its first major action since the Colmar pocket fight at 1 a. m., striking silently without the usual artillery preparation.

The 63rd division paced the early advance with a three-mile thrust that seized Fuedingen, only two miles southeast of the ruined war factories of Saarbruecken.

Farther east the division shoved into Ennsheim, two miles north of the Saar border and hard up against the Siegfried line.

Moselle Bank Cleared
Fifteen miles north of Strasbourg, the 36th division was driving the Germans from the last houses in the northern part of Haguenau.

Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's troops crossed the Moselle yesterday against light resistance, it was disclosed only today, and quickly cleared 11 towns on the south bank, where the Germans must make a stand if they expect to hold for long their last territory still unconquered west of the Rhine.

The first crossings were made on trestle bridges at two points from eight miles southwest of Coblenz to 17 miles southwest.

These were swiftly welded into one bridgehead nine miles wide and as much as six miles deep.

The new drive was led by the Fifth and 90th infantry divisions. The 90th fought eastward to within two and three-fourths miles of a bend in the Rhine due south of Coblenz.

The German Seventh army, already broken in the battle of the Elif Mountains north of the Moselle when Patton cracked through to the Rhine, appeared too badly shaken to check the push.

When the United States was first established, there was no money in the federal treasury and no machinery for collecting taxes, no judiciary, no court system and no means of enforcing federal law.

important one is the composition requirements. It requires at least twice as long to set on a linotype the running account of a basketball game as it would require to set the same amount of space in solid type. This great chore coming in late at night at the very time the linotype operators are speeding to meet publication deadline would throw the entire shop into a jumbled disorder. Of course, it would be impossible to meet the publication deadline so mail subscribers wouldn't get their paper at all.

There are still other factors that must be considered in connection with this play-by-play system, but by now you get the general idea. It's grand reporting of basketball games, but it just doesn't work out for a morning paper. Even the afternoon papers which have something like 18 hours between the playing of a game and publication of the report in their next issue, find the play by play system extremely burdensome and utilize the system sparingly.

BOND RANGE NARROW
New York, March 15 (AP)—Limited progress by a sizable group of rails and successful marketing of the largest issue of new revenue bonds ever sold in the market today.

Advances among rails of fractions to around a point, while bonds were in a narrow range with scattered losers in all groups. Sales of $12,731,000 compared with $8,400,000 on Wednesday.

A nation-wide banking group headed by Dillon, Read & Co. sold a new issue of $10,000,000 Tri-Bond and Bridge Authority sinking fund and serial bonds bearing an exceptionally low interest rate of 2 1/4 per cent, in record time, closing the books in the middle of the afternoon.

While this huge undertaking diverted some trading in other securities, a steady undercurrent was held and there were some net gains. A 2 1/2 per cent, in the group U. S. governments did virtually nothing.

In the plus column at the close were, among others, Atlantic Coast Line first 4s, Central of Georgia 5s, Chicago & Alton 4s, St. Paul 4 1/2s and 5s, Northern Western 4 1/2s, Rock Island 4 1/2s, Rio Grande Western 5s, Goodrich 4 1/2s, Katy 4s, New Haven 3 1/2s and 4 1/2s, Southern Railway 4 1/2s and several bonds of the Seaboard Airline.

A lower drift in bonds of Brazil accounted for most of the activity in foreign bonds.

DEALINGS SLOW; GAINS ARE WIDE

New York, March 15 (AP)—Wide gains were achieved by rail and industrial specialties in today's stock market although dealing was slow and the slowest for the past several months and most leaders did little or nothing.

The Associated Press 60-stock average was up 5 1/2 of a point at 61.7. Transfers totaled 800,000 shares compared with 650,000 a year ago. But issues registering, 430 were up against 434 down or unchanged.

Atlas Coast Line held to its stellar role, climbing 7 1/2 to new 1945 peak in further reflection of the split-up program of its subsidiary, Louisville & Nashville. ## LOCAL CLOCKS GO UNCHANGED

Most U. P. Counties On Time Which Becomes Law Saturday

Residents of Delta and most counties of the Upper Peninsula will not have to tinker with their clocks at midnight Saturday to conform to the new state law making Central War Time official in Michigan, for they are already getting up and going to bed on that time.

Many cities in lower Michigan, however, are affected by the change, as are state offices in Lower Michigan. In Escanaba the U. P. branch office of the state highway department said that it had not been notified whether the state ferries schedule at the Straits of Mackinac would be changed to conform to Central War Time. They are now operating on a schedule timed one hour earlier than in Escanaba.

The history of clock juggling is rather a hectic one in Escanaba, and included a city-wide referendum on the subject in November, 1940.

It was decided then by an overwhelming majority that the city should use Central Standard Time, and that from the last Sunday in April to the last Sunday in September the clocks should be advanced one hour to provide "day-

Retailers Making Ready for Seventh War Loan Campaign

Although the Seventh War Loan is two months away, as announced by Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, local retailers are starting to plan their activities for participation. The 7 billion dollar quota for individuals, of which the Series E bond quota is 4 billion dollars, exceeds that for any previous drive.

"All we need do is look at the Seventh War Loan quota to realize, without being told, that retailers are expected to play a role of great importance in the forthcoming drive," said Gust Asp, local chairman for the Michigan Retailers War Savings committee.

"Light saving time" each summer.

In February, 1942, after President Roosevelt had called for "war time", which meant advancing the clocks one hour, the Escanaba council by resolution adopted Central Daylight Saving Time (which corresponds to Central War Time) for the duration of the war.

This Central War Time, one hour faster than Central Standard Time, has continued in effect to now. It will remain unchanged because it conforms to the new state law, which was largely the result of agitation by the State Grange and other farm organizations.

"It is our responsibility to see that advertising and displays of local retailers do full justice to this important war activity. Further, because retail people have more personal contacts than any other group, we are expected to support our War Bond publicity with actual bond selling.

"The records of every War Loan show success where there is organized and intensive effort to actually ask people to invest. Many people 'intend' to buy bonds, but fail to act until someone asks them. So we must be prepared to talk with everyone we can about the necessity of buying bonds to the limit.

"During the Sixth War Loan, merchants were faced with the rush of Christmas business, and many were unable to function to their fullest effectiveness. In the Seventh War Loan, there will be no excuse for our not doing our full share of the job. I hope that every retailer will become a real integral part of our retailers' bond selling organization in the drive ahead, and as long as the selling of War Bonds is necessary," said Mr. Asp.
